This was the European Heat Pump Summit 2013

The European Heat Pump Summit 2013 Nuremberg made on 15 and 16 October 2013 for heat pump City: Around 250 participants attended an international conference in just 40 lectures by renowned speakers from home and abroad on current issues around the heat pump.

Technical solutions, applications, market analysis, as well as challenges and opportunities through policy frameworks such as the F-gas regulation and the EU Eco-Design Directive were central themes of the Congress. Another focus was on the components. Among the highlights of the presentations at the IEA Heat Pump Programme, the trends and future possibilities of heat pumps, for example, in smart grids included, lit. Numbers and information on market development in many European countries, India and Russia rounded out the range of lecture topics.

Participants came from 26 countries, including many EU Member States, but also from countries such as the USA, South Korea, Lithuania and Russia.

More in word and image to the European Heat Pump Summit heat pumps and current trends following cci newspaper 13/2013, on 15 November appears.

At the recent Directive came into force the European Union to introduce a label for efficiency heat generator initiated the association EHPA during the evening event the symbolic gate of the "Energy Label Cake". Thomas Nowak EHPA) (left) and Karl Ochsner (Ochsner heat pumps) (Fig. Nuremberg Messe)